Courtesy of the manufacturer so you want to do something different to your home now? Here are 101 ideas from 101 designers, and there's something for each room. 1 in 101 Turn off the disconnect your dining room electrocution switch. Place candles on the shelf and candlesticks and even in your chandeliers – Marjorie Scoras makes one that dripping with coral. So romantic. Who cares what you serve! - Susan Reinstein 2 out of 101 Use something natural Buy a tree in a basket or plant and put it in your loneliest corner. I love a fig and a violin leaf on its sweet leaves Bill Beale. If you want to go the extra step, stick some flashlights behind it. - Celery Campbell 3 of 101 Try a subtle scent I don't usually use the fragrance, but there's nothing like the potfori of Santa Maria Novella. People come into the house and say, what is this? Jackie Terrell 4 out of 101 smooth and occupied once I had a friend who stayed with me for a week and she cleaned all my drawers. It was a life-changing experience. So go to the container store and buy all the partitions in the drawer and start organizing. - Phoebe Howard 5 out of 101 Contrast with dark color Paint your base panels in a contrasting color like Spanish brown or dark gray. It's like applying eyeliner - it'll make the wall pop. Plus, it won't look rubbing. - Thomas Jane 6 out of 101 for angular consider setting the furniture - and carpet - at an angle. It'll change the whole dynamic of a room. -Vicente Wolf seating area Wolf created in this Palm Beach apartment in 1970 perfectly located on an angle. 7 of the 101st D.I.Y. Art Gallery go to Home Depot, buy a design crown's length at least five inches deep, and nail it to the wall to create an image shelf. I'd do it in a family space, like a kitchen or a hallway. Buy standard frames and jump in your kids' art or family photos and change it every few weeks. Susan Lovell 8 of 101 Try a new scent I visited a friend in the south of France, and every night she would light a Jo Malone candle in my bedroom and close the door. When I went to bed, there was a smell - basil, lyme and mandarin orange. Now, every time I light this candle, I think of France. -Katie Reader 9 of 101 hide LED lights to buy a bunch of those battery-powered bulbs anywhere for just $8.99 each. They're like little hockey pucks, with glue in the back. Put them under a console table, on top of a bookcase, or use them to turn back some interesting object on a shelf. - Hearty Cameron 10 of 101 Try a new style bulb to experiment with different bulbs in your flashlights and chandeliers. Instead of the traditional flame tip, try using clear Edison bulbs. Ditch the shades for a more modern look. -Philip Gorrivan 11 of 101 create dramatic light if you want some drama in your life, change the color of your lampshades to black. Much more dramatic, and it creates beautiful pools of light – along with a little punctuation – in Room. Line the shades with gold paper to add some sparkle. -Jennifer Garrigues 12 of 101 used seasonal accessories get some wicker baskets or nice bowls - all you have - and fill them with lady apples, pears, or English walnuts, depending on the season, and put them all over the house. Multiplication is what makes the drama. - Dan Kiryathras 13 out of 101 give seasonal rooms in winter, I bring cashmere blankets, fur shots, and my padded bed paper from Leontine bedding. In summer, the cotton and cotton oven covers come out. I'm also a sucker for LeBron's hand towels. Malcolm James Kutner 14 of 101 I will create your coffin to purge, edit, and organize your coffin. We love beautiful linen-covered boxes of different sizes, shapes, and colors that respond to the different categories of your property. Buy all new hangers. Add a personal accent, like fragrant shelf liners. -Alyssa Kalman 15 of 101 Dress Curtains if you want to emphasize the height of a room, apply a checker, ribbon, or trim to the leading edge of curtains. -Barry Dixon 16 of 101 Liven Up boring spots if your bookshelves look bland, paint your back and sides a contrasting color. Pick up the paint across the room with an accent cushion or throw away. - Connie Beale 17 of 101 add light to your room and puts a big mirror in front of a window to open a room and double the amount of natural light. -Jeff Andrews 18 of the 101 Primp style go hardware recovery and get all the new bathroom accessories. I love their sleek soap dishes, and I bought their sleek nickel trays in all three sizes. Susan Kessler 19 of 101 rotating accessories will replace your pillows. Two bright Turkish cushions by Madeleine Weinreib can transform a living room. Chanel to your bed. Make an entrance foyer, the final wall of a long, gloomy hallway, or the ceiling of a tiny bathroom, just for fun. - Christopher Coleman mural photo Coleman placed on the wall of this media room – designed for the 2009 Kips Bay Show House – makes a big impact. 21 out of 101 Create Oasis make your bathroom feel like a spa. Get rid of the mess. Buy great sea-scale towels in a new color. Add a few small candles and light them at night when you have guests. -Mary Douglas Drysdale 22 of 101 pull extra seats I found the best small Japanese-style benches in Flower River that can serve as extra seating in almost any room. They are available in sea or mango wood - or you can paint them in a wonderful colour. - Lynn Morgan 23 of 101 Give your bed a boost You know you're really safe when you put your bed in the middle of the room. Add bed curtains and it becomes a private area. I like the mattress. You'll be a little high, so I'll buy bed lifts from Bath fabric and beyond. They're like high heels for beds. - Mallory Marshall 24 of 101 Try a tropical style first, I took the curtains in my bedroom and the wallbed with a sexy tan color. Then I made my designs with turtle bamboo - split along it so it lays flat. I used it to list the windows and doors and tray ceiling. Handsome and tropical. -Brooke Hutig 25's 101 revitalize your bedroom and new bedding can make the bedroom feel fresh and new again. Areahome.com or dwellstudio.com have amazing and sophisticated patterns that don't empty your wallet. They even make baby bedding. -Eve Robinson 26 of 101 rethink that Empy wall create the perfect picture wall. I organize my photos by subject. I like to print my travel photos in sepia shades and then order frames and design picturewallcompany.com. They make it so easy that the pictures actually arrange themselves on the wall. - Amy Lowe 27 of 101 to attach frenches or on the edge I like a tassel tree and a fringe ball in all colors, shapes, and sizes. It looks great on pillows or curtains or lampshades. -Mario Buatta 28 of 101 play with lighting would change all the bulbs in the house at once – each and every one – and carefully select the appropriate power for specific locations or fixtures. Then control all the light by installing a dimmer with predefined buttons so you can return to your preferred light level. Maybe add simple picture lights to some of your creations. -Hermes Mallea 29 of 101 think outside the box if you have a flat-screen TV, don't leave it blank. Program it with video art. -Campion Platt 30 of 101 fit the access of a room bought track ceiling curtains and the least expensive bedding you can find and wrap all the walls. White linens in the bedroom, darker color in the dining room. It smoothes everything out and feels moody and interesting. You can even hang art from chains on top of it. - Betsy Brown and Johnny And Liant from adding a dimming to finally say goodbye to 'do-to' furniture, 6 interior designers share the secrets of their own quick change acts. A lake house dated to getting lovely countryside after some savvy budget repairs, this place is as tempting as the scenery. Anna White will make your life easier with these almost instantaneous actions for your space, your stuff, your kitchen and your routine. Word is Mary Kay started her business on her kitchen table. Many business owners start in a tiny corner of the house with furniture and equipment they already have. While this allows for a quick, affordable startup, over time, it can affect business growth. The reality is, designing your home office plays a role in your productivity and energy. If your home office is still on the kitchen table or dining room corner, or you feel uninspired in your space, it's time for a home office makeover. Here are some things to consider when choosing the location and design of your home office As well as ideas for layouts. While you don't have many home office options when you start, it's important to consider a permanent home office that maximizes productivity. But even the ideal home office space could lose its distortion. Periodic redesign of your home office can energize and inspire you. Here are things to consider when setting up or redesigning your home office. Your kitchen table or tucked desk in the corner of a bedroom is a good place to start your home business journey, but as you grow, you want to design an office that supports your work. Having to pack to get off the dinner table every night can quickly shed. The ideal space in your home is distraction-free while working and has a door, both making it easier to divide working time and space with your personal time and space to create a greater work/life balance. Along with being far from high traffic areas, you want to think about other distractions, such as how powerful external activity is, TV or appliances. Make sure the temperature in the room contributes to the work. If you meet customers in your home, you want a place close to where they enter and it can be far from your normal living space. Many people put their home office in the basement, which isn't bad, but there are many benefits to natural lighting. If you need to be in a dark area with no windows, get good quality lighting that not only lights up the room, but your work area as well. Light can help you avoid eye strain, and boost your mood. Along with eye dosing, back problems are another risk that comes from working at home especially if you're working on your computer all day. There are home office items you can skimp on, but a chair isn't one of them. Studies show that messy people are geniuses. However, a messy desk can increase stress, SAP energy and lower productivity. Your desk shouldn't look like Martha Stewart arranged it, but it should be a degree of orderly organization so you can find what you need easily. Imprison the pens, paperclides and other office tools into or other desktop organization tools. Developing a filing system for managing paper. Consider switching to digital tools to reduce the amount of paper and other desktop items you need. While getting up and moving is a good thing health-wise, it can interfere with your focus and workflow, thereby slowing you down. For items you use a lot, you'll want to design your home office so you can access them quickly and easily. For example, if you use your phone frequently, you'll want it on a table. Other resources you'll need to keep close include specific files, reference books, a specific planner, and printer. If your home office requires a lot of technology, you want to set up your furniture so that outlets are within easy reach of your equipment. While extension cords can give you some flexibility, they can get in the way and cause a hazard to the quake. All your furniture and tools should be used It doesn't bother you, you're in your home business. It includes your desk, bookcases, file cabinets, and anything else you need. Even working at home can be tedious and boring. A boring home office can float your energy making it hard to work. Paint your home office with the color you like. Hang pictures, posters and design on the walls. Surround yourself with motivating items such as photos of your family, inspirational quotes, a vision board and other items that understand you joy. Eco-friendly home office design isn't just about being nice to the planet. It can also reduce your load and expenses. Reuse and recycle paper and other items if possible. Switch to digital tools across planners and other paper items. Use energy-saving light bulbs and power strips, and the weather will seal your windows, which will save your electricity bill. It can be fun decorating a home office, but you don't want to spend money on items you don't need. While you don't want to sacrifice your comfort (that is, you have to buy a good chair), you want to be frugal, at least initially. Take your home inventory and see what items you already have that can be transferred to your home office. Your budget also includes your technological needs. Wait to buy new PCs, printers and software unless you need them. If you need new furniture, visit local tacit shops, which often have less durable furniture than you can buy partici board items at other stores. Along with the other office space issues already mentioned, don't forget an essential part of your office. Your desktop will need to adjust to your work, adjust your budget, and complete your office space. Some considerations in choosing a desktop include the office location in your home, and whether you need space for multiple monitors, monitor stands, and a keyboard drawer. Drawer.
